

Having been one who has been awakened, from my sleep, by the constant calling of telemarketers. I am very happy with the procedure the state of Indiana has put into place to decrease these calls. I have gone from a constant barage of calls down to almost none. My feeling are that the FCC should not supercede the plan which is in place and working in the state of Indiana. I realize that many large companies with major campaign contributions have a different viewpoint. Sincerely.

Kyle Wright